INSPIRED GIVING

Pam Miller and sons Giizhik and Mino Klawiter

Giizhik was diagnosed with autism at age five. His mother, Pam, always encouraged Giizhik’s imagination and creativity which resulted in his passion for paper, pens, and drawing. Pam shares, “He would come home after a long day at school and begin his lengthy and busy drawing regime. Page after page of drawings would spill from his fervently moving mind and hands.” Pam was inspired to use Giizhik’s designs as holiday cards to raise funds and awareness for autism research. “It is our hope that with the proceeds generated from the sale of our holiday cards, we will one day unravel the autism puzzle.”

Giizhik and his younger brother Mino design cards for their annual holiday sale — the proceeds of which benefit autism research at the Waisman Center. Mino’s cards are dedicated to all who have the honor and privilege of loving someone with autism.
